

I TRUST I AM LOVE

I trust that I AM well taken care of.

My heart is large and can accommodate all my doubts and dissolve each and every one. My inner calm is immensely valuable now. I don't need to know all the details in the NOW but I can recognize and accept them as part of Divine Mother's Plan. She is taking care of it all, of ALL her children-- without exception.

With every breath I remind myself of the One who is breathing through me, for me.

I am not here to do this alone for I am not alone, apart, separate from the One. I am conscious of the Love that is manifesting the experiences of the NOW. The limitlessness of it, when I dwell into the Mystery of the Unknown, it takes my breath away.

The mundane world is still a beauty to behold. With its varying degrees of contrast, levels of desire, and opposing contradictions-- it is not meant to be known as Truth, but as a place to affirm the Truth of reality and our presence within it and as the creators of it. This is a place we have made to experience our return to the One, the return to Unity Consciousness.

This mundane world only appears to be real as there is a an abundance of choice for our egos to have fun and go crazy with. A validation for its apparent existence. But the ego is self-made too! It knows only part of the story, a slice of the pie, a fragment of the Whole Picture. So today I will hand over my "keys", my decision-making authority, over to my Maker, our Mother, the One who has been guiding us All.

I will choose with my heart and ask for Spirit to reveal God's presence of unconditional love in every moment of Now. All day throughout the day, please and thank you!

I AM LOVE incarnate. And I WILL, with this power of Truth, that I be set free of this illusion of fear and travel this planet with a knowing of our Source inside my heart and mind.

And so it is!

